1. On 11 May 1951, an artillery unit was bivouacked about 500 meters west of the Neuholdensleben-Born road, about 1 km south of the point where the road to Huettten branches off. From 15 to 20 trucks and from 10 to 12 artillery pieces were parked beside huts constructed of branches. Heavy traffic of individual vehicles, loaded with troops, materiel, ration supplies, and ammunition was observed on the Neuholdensleben-Born road. [REDACTED]

2. Roads barred to civilian traffic included: the road branching off north of Neuholdensleben and going to Huettten and Planken; the Born-Planken-Meseberg road; the Dolle-Letzlingen road; and the concrete road to Waats which branches off the Dolle-Letzlingen road. Residents of Born stated that the number of troops at Letzling Heath this year was substantially increased as compared with previous years. *
